

COCCOLITH

This colouring-in sheet is inspired by coccoliths. The tiny calcite skeletons of a type of algae called coccoliths left a thick layer on the sea bed. After millions of years this gave us bright white Cretaceous chalk on the Jurassic Coast. Spectacular chalk cliffs can be seen at Old Harry rocks near Swanage.